LAND ROVER DISCOVERY

This section includes our range of Accessories suitable for the Land Rover Discovery. We also include accessories which suit popular modifications to Discovery vehicles - so don't think it's a mistake if you see something that doesn't usually fit original vehicles, because you can bet that someone has a modified vehicle it will fit.

You'll also see some items are photographed on other Land Rover vehicles - this is simply because we didn't have a Discovery to hand when the photographer called in - so just make sure you use the right reference number when ordering or check with one of our expert staff who will be able to advise on correct fitment.

PARTS: Bearmach produces vehicle-specific catalogues listing our vast range of parts suitable for all Land Rover vehicles - make sure you get the latest edition for your particular vehicle.

NOTE: Manufacturers parts numbers are used for reference purposes only.

Certificate No. RS20282

Every Land Rover model range ever made has been developed and improved continuously during its life cycle - and the Discovery has been the epitome of this philosophy. Development has always focussed on upgrading the technical specification to enhance off-road capabilities and performance and to broaden the vehicle's appeal.

The Discovery model range, launched in 1989, was designed to compete in the burgeoning leisure segment of the 4x4 market. Initially only available in 3 door configuration yet it competed well in the family car market with its comfortable ride and an interior designed by Sir Terence Conran. But just a year after launch the 5 door model became available and fuel injection replaced carburettors.

The Discovery utilised a Range Rover chassis and featured coil sprung live axles at the front and rear. Both diesel and petrol versions were available - a turbocharged four cylinder 2.5 litre, 200Tdi diesel engine and the tried and trusted 3.5 litre V8i petrol engine. The driveline consisted of the LT77 5-speed manual gearbox and an LT230T transfer gearbox.

1994 saw more noticeable improvements with a redesigned exterior, including new headlamps, and design enhancements to the interior. The 300TDi engine was introduced and ABS was now available. The R380 gearbox was introduced and automatic transmission was available with the diesel engined models.

As the 90s wore on competition got stiffer but Land Rover had "Project Tempest" underway - this culminated in 1998 with the introduction of "New Discovery" - now known as Series 2. The new car kept its strongest elements like the distinctive bodyshape but vital improvements in handling and build quality were addressed.

However, it was the all new TD5 engine that epitomised the quality of the Series II and the petrol V8 version was just as revolutionary. Hill Descent Control was fitted as standard and options included Active Cornering Enhancement and Self-Levelling Suspension.

The biggest leap in technology yet took place in 2004 with the launch of the Discovery 3 - but that's another story...

POLYURETHANE BUSH KITS

The fitment of Bearmach Polyurethane Bushes has been developed to give more positive location at pivot or fulcrum points. These suspension components are particularly recommended if you regularly tow or carry heavy loads.

Polyurethane Bushes have been taking over the automotive suspension industry. The urethane elastomers used have the versatility and elasticity of rubber yet with the advantages of rigid plastics and metals. These bushes have a high capacity to bear tension and compression and have been tested at temperatures from -100°C to +100°C. They are resistant to deterioration and swelling caused by oil, grease or chemicals.
